

Chris Bradshaw

Chris Bradshaw is a lawyer in the Information and Human Rights Team in Legal Directorate of the Ministry of Justice. Chris specialises in information law and has advised extensively on the application of the freedom of information regime in a central government context. Chris has been involved in numerous information law cases, advised on amendments to the Freedom of Information Act and drafted secondary legislation in the freedom of information field.